

“Electronic devices” is the main subject in students training to be experts in electronics. Students need a good knowledge in the solid-state physics, contact phenomenon, and circuit theory to study “Electronic devices”. The main task of this subject is to teach students to use various tips of modern semiconductors and integrated circuits in different function devices.

Full article